Theatrical Realities. It would not be an exaggeration to say that the top directors of the region have been pushing contemporary theatre, as a whole, ahead into new territories. This book offers informative and in-depth portraits of twenty of these directors, written by leading critics, scholars, and researchers, who shed light on the directors' signature styles with examples of their emblematic productions and outline the reasons for their impact. In addition, in two chapters the selected directors themselves discuss their artistic family trees, as well as the main challenges the theatre faces today. The book will be of interest to theatre scholars, students, and anybody engaged with theatre on a global scale.

The directors featured in the book are: Alvis Hermanis (Latvia), Oskaras Korsunovas, Eimuntas Nekrosius, and Rimas Tuminas (Lithuania), Oliver Frlić (Croatia), Arpad Schilling and Bela Pinter (Hungary), Silviu Purcarete, Andrei Serban, and Gianina Carbutariu (Romania), Daniel Spinar, and Jan Mikulasek (the Czech Republic), Alexander Morfov (Bulgaria), Włodzimierz Staniewski, Jan Klata, Grzegorz Bral, Krzysztof Warlikowski, Grzegorz Jarzyna, and Krystian Lupa (Poland), and Jernej Lorenci (Slovenia).

“The Cold War is decades behind us, still readers of English know precious little about the arts and cultures of Eastern Europe. Here is a book that takes readers to the theatres of Poland, Latvia, Lithuania, the Czech Republic, Romania, Croatia, Slovenia, Bulgaria, and Hungary. A book exploring theatre directing, theatre groups, and important artists ranging from the relatively well-known like Krystian Lupa and Andrei Şerban to the many equally creative but still hidden theatre creators. A must-read for anyone wanting to learn about this region's extraordinary theatrical diversity and energy.”

Richard Schechner, Editor, TDR: The Journal of Performance Studies, University Professor Emeritus, New York University
